

Register of Gifts & Hospitality – Senior staff - 2019

Members of staff should not place themselves under any obligation to outside individuals or organisations that might influence them in the performance of their job or, just as importantly, that might give rise to a perception that they might be so influenced. Members of staff should avoid accepting hospitality or gifts that might call into question their independence or impartiality.

You should disclose for publication any gift, hospitality or benefit received in your capacity as a member of staff or connected to the performance of your duties. It is not necessary to record gifts with a value of less than £20 or hospitality such as a light lunch as part of a working event, but a declaration should be made every time the benefit provided is significant and could therefore be perceived as having an actual or potential influence on your conduct. You should err on the side of declaration if unsure whether or not to disclose.
