

Susan Bradford

Non-Executive Director, South Western Ambulance Service NHS Foundation Trust

Susan is a lawyer professionally and spent a number of years acting on behalf of NHS Trusts in high value, complex, negligence litigation, as well as undertaking healthcare regulatory work.

Currently she is a Commissioner with the Commission on Human Medicines, a body which advises the Licensing Authority on the safety and efficacy of medicines; a Fitness to Practise and Appeals Panel member with the Association for Nutrition; and has been appointed by a number of south-west councils as an Independent Person in children's social care complaints. In voluntary capacity she is a Lay Member on the Central Bristol Clinical Research Ethics Committee, where she has a role in protecting the interests of those who participate in medical research.
