

Guidance for unsuccessful candidates in the June 2022 registration assessment

About this document

We realise that not passing this sitting of the registration assessment will be very disappointing and that you will need some time to come to terms with it before you decide on your next steps.

This document gives you information and guidance which you may find useful if you have been unsuccessful in the registration assessment.

You can find out more about the registration assessment in the GPhC Foundation Training manual and the June 2022 registration assessment webpage on the main GPhC website.

1. Candidate results

You will receive your registration assessment results via myGPhC on Friday 29 July 2022. Your results information will tell you:

- the pass mark for part 1 and part 2 of your sitting of the assessment, and
- the marks you achieved in part 1 and part 2 of your sitting

To pass the registration assessment, you must achieve the pass mark in both parts in one sitting.

If you registered for the assessment but did not attend and did not formally notify us of your withdrawal, this is counted as a failed attempt at the registration assessment. You should have received your failed result by or on 29 July 2022. This letter will be sent by email only and will not appear on your myGPhC account.

We will not issue any hard copy results by posted letter.

2. How we award marks

Each sitting of the registration assessment has two papers.

There are 40 calculation questions in the part one paper and 120 questions (90 single-best-answer questions and 30 extended-matching questions) in the part two paper.

The Board of Assessors may remove questions after the assessment – for example, because of a recent change in guidance or legislation. This means that the total marks available for a paper may be less than 40 for the part one paper, and less than 120 for part two. If questions are removed, the pass mark for that paper is adjusted accordingly.

Marking individual answers

Each correct answer is awarded one mark and each incorrect answer is awarded zero marks.

We do not use negative marking – that is, marks are not taken away for incorrect answers.

Marking each part of the assessment

The marks for correct part one answers are added together to provide your part one mark, and the marks for correct part two answers are added together to provide your part two mark.

Passing the assessment

Each part of the assessment has a separate pass mark. This may vary between sittings depending on the difficulty of the questions in that sitting. This variable pass mark means that the standard required to pass is kept the same for different sittings.

To pass the registration assessment you must:

- achieve the pass mark or greater in part one; and
- achieve the pass mark or greater in part two.

Marks cannot be compensated between papers – high achievement in one paper does not balance out lower achievement in another paper. Marks cannot be transferred between sittings.

3. Quality assurance of candidates' marks

There are processes in place for checking of candidates' answers and the marks awarded. We are confident that these are robust, and that answers have been recorded and interpreted accurately, so we do not offer re-marking. Results are final and we will not carry out any further review of individual marks.

You can find out more about how answers are marked and how results are awarded on the Assuring the registration assessment page of the GPhC website.

4. Appealing your assessment result

Your right to appeal against an unsuccessful result is explained in section 10 of the registration assessment regulations.

Grounds for appeal

We will consider an appeal request if it meets either of the grounds for appeal:

1. Procedural grounds. This is when you feel that a registration assessment procedure was not correctly applied. This includes problems with the way sitting took place, such as IT and technical issues, or delays to you starting either paper.
2. If there were exceptional circumstances, unique to you, that may have affected your performance during a sitting, but that you did not know about and could not have known about before or during the sitting.

Appeals and nullification

Important: you cannot appeal against an unsuccessful result if you could have asked for your assessment attempt to be 'nullified' for the same reason.

Under section 6 of the registration assessment regulations, you can ask for an attempt to be nullified if, for example, you become ill during an assessment sitting. In effect, this means the sitting is treated as if it had never happened, and it does not count towards your number of available attempts at the assessment. If you do appeal in this situation, the GPhC will refuse your appeal.

You can submit an appeal if you have asked for your assessment attempt to be nullified but are appealing your result for a different reason.

Appeals and applying for next assessment sitting

If you are planning to sit your second or third attempt at the next sitting, you should continue to prepare and to apply in the normal way, even if you don't know the outcome of your appeal by the time you apply.

If you have failed all three attempts, you must wait for your outcome of your appeal before you can apply for another sitting. We encourage all candidates to send in their appeal documentation at the earliest opportunity.

Appeal outcomes

There are only two outcomes to an appeal.

1. The appeal is not upheld. When an appeal is not upheld, the fail result stands and the candidate is deemed unsuccessful in that attempt at the registration assessment.
2. The appeal is upheld. When an appeal is upheld, the attempt is nullified. This means that it does not count towards the number of available attempts at the assessment. If the appeal is upheld on procedural grounds and the candidate is eligible, they will be able to join the provisional register. You can find out more in the appeal guidance.

There are no other appeal outcomes.

We aim to deal with all appeals made on procedural grounds to do with problems with the way sitting took place, within two weeks of receiving the appeal.

If you are appealing for a different reason, it may take slightly longer to deal with your appeal, depending on how complicated it is. We can't provide a specific timeframe as to when you will receive your decision by.

Once the Appeals Panel has decided on the outcome of your appeal, we will write to you advising of this.

If you are appealing on procedural grounds to do with problems with the way sitting took place and your appeal is upheld, and your time limit to apply for registration will expire as a result of the issues relating to this assessment, then we will extend your time limit by 12 months. We will confirm this in your appeal outcome letter.

If you're appealing on other grounds and your appeal is upheld, this does not automatically mean that your time limit to apply for registration will be extended.

Submitting an appeal

If you think you may have valid grounds for an appeal, you must:

1. Complete an appeal form available on the dedicated sitting page of the GPhC website and collect together and scan any evidence you have to support your request. Read the guidance available with the form to find out more about the evidence you may want to submit.
2. Send your appeal form and supporting evidence by email to regexam@pharmacyregulation.org by Friday 22 August 2022. We will not accept appeals by any other method.

We will only consider an appeal submitted after the deadline under certain circumstances. Read section 10.9 in the registration assessment regulations to find out when we consider a late appeal. If you submit your appeal after the deadline and without a good reason, we can't guarantee that we will be able to process it.

If you are planning to sit the November assessment, and are submitting your appeal on procedural grounds to do with problems with the way sitting took place, you must submit your appeal by 22 August 2022 to receive an outcome in time to apply to sit.

5. Sitting the assessment again

The Autumn 2022 assessment sitting is on Thursday 3 November.

Information about eligibility, entry deadlines, requesting for a reasonable adjustment and how to apply for the Autumn 2022 sitting is available on the November 2022 registration assessment website page.

It is your responsibility to ensure that you submit the correct documentation to us by the deadline dates given.

6. Applying for a reasonable adjustment

If you intend to sit in November and would like to request a reasonable adjustment you must submit the reasonable adjustment application form to adjustments@pharmacyregulation.org by 9am on Wednesday 10 August 2022.

If you are having difficulty in completing or obtaining the required evidence, please contact adjustments@pharmacyregulation.org before the application deadline.

We aren't able to accept applications any later than 10 August as we would not have time before the sitting to consider these and put the adjustments in place.

Make sure you have read and followed the guidance before submitting the form. We may not be able to grant your request if your application is incomplete or incorrect.

7. Registration applications

If you have submitted your registration application in advance of receiving your results, your application will remain live on myGPhC until the end of 2022. This is so if you are successful in the November sitting, you can edit it and use it to reapply at any point during the year, without paying another fee.

However, you may need to submit updated supporting documents, if the ones you submitted with your initial application are no longer valid. If you want to reapply the following year, you will need to start a new application and pay the application fee again. We do not offer refunds on application fees, as these cover the costs of processing the application.

Please read our guidance document for more information about registration applications.

8. Help and support

We realise that being unsuccessful at attempting the registration assessment will be very disappointing, and that you may need some time to come to terms with the result.

If you have not already done so, you may want to speak to your employer about the support they may be able to offer.

We would also highlight that there may be a number of roles that you could potentially work in across pharmacy if you are not successful while you wait for the next sitting.

There are organisations that can help and support you, both personally and professionally, to decide on your next steps. We have listed some of these below, but you may also find more sources of help and support locally.

British Pharmaceutical Students Association (BPSA)

The BPSA supports pre-registration trainees and provisional registrants through their graduate office – you can get in touch via email at graduateofficer@bpsa.co.uk, on Facebook at www.facebook.com/TheBPSA or on Twitter at www.twitter.com/bpsa

Health Education England (HEE)

Health Education England offers learning support to trainees and provisional registrants in England via the Interim Foundation Pharmacist Programme.

Centre for Pharmacy Postgraduate Education (CPPE)

The CPPE provides educational solutions for the NHS pharmacy workforce across England to maximise its contribution to improving patient care.

NHS Education for Scotland (NES)

NHS Education for Scotland offers learning support to trainees and provisional registrants in Scotland and may be able to offer you a funded position and educational support to the next GPhC registration assessment sitting if you have been working as a provisionally registered pharmacist in Scotland. Contact them by email at pharmacy@nes.scot.nhs.uk.

Health Education and Improvement Wales

Health Education and Improvement Wales offers learning support to trainees and provisional registrants in Wales.

The Pharmacists' Defence Association (PDA)

The PDA is a not-for-profit organisation which aims to act upon and support the needs of individual pharmacists, including trainees and provisional registrants.

Contact them by email at enquiries@the-pda.org , or phone on 0121 694 7000.

Pharmacist Support

Pharmacist Support is the pharmacist profession's independent charity. Find out how they can help you on their wellbeing web page.

Royal Pharmaceutical Society (RPS)

The RPS offers support for you during your training and provisional registration.

Crisis support

If you just need to talk, any time of day or night you can call 116 123 to talk to Samaritans.

If you prefer texting, you can text "SHOUT" to 85258 to contact the Shout Crisis Text Line.

Third time sitters

As well as the organisations listed above, you may find it helpful speak to a specialist careers counsellor. They could advise you about career options which make use of your pharmacy degree, but do not need you to be registered as a pharmacist. A Citizens Advice Bureau should be able to give you the contact details of a careers counselling service in your area, or you may also be able to find help from your university careers service. Pharmacist Support also a factsheet available for pharmacy graduates.
